A RUN ON THE BANK.

HOW ABOUT THE DAILY BALANCE OF NERVOUS ENERGY

From January to May a Serious Period—The Necessity of a True Food for the Nerves and Blood—What Failure's Every Compound Has Done—The Case of Mr. Glaze.

From January until May there is a fearful demand made on one's stock of health—fevers, pulmonary troubles and the host of cold weather ills quickly bring down the vitality and expend the nervous force.

Those with an insufficient reserve of vigor and nervous energy fall winter victims to contagious diseases and to special diseases of liver, stomach and kidneys.

These important organs, whose duty it is to feed the tissues and keep the blood pure, feel the lack of nervous energy quickest. They require more nerve force than other parts of the body. The result is a breakdown in heart, lungs, kidneys, liver or brain.

The different organs of the body suffer from the food the nourishment appropriate to them. Pain's Celery Compound is especially prepared to furnish at once abundant nutrition to badly fed nerves and impoverished blood.

Every one should profit by the experience of Thomas Glaze of Pittsburgh, Pa., who says:

"I was taken with the dropsy about one year ago in the feet and legs, and took several medicines, but without benefit until I tried Pain's Celery Compound. I felt better soon after taking it, and do not have any trouble from the dropsy now."

CHARTER CHANGES.

Tinkering With the Laws Governing Fourth Class Cities.

The bill of amendments to fourth class charters, which will probably become a law, changes the time of assessment.

It provides a plan by which new territory may be taken into the city limits, or a part stricken off; the Circuit Judge to decide as to the wisdom of the same.

It is left optional with the City Council as to whether a Board of Public Works shall be appointed or not, and whether a City Collector or the Treasurer shall collect the taxes.

The terms of office of members of the Council are to begin the first Monday in December, terms of other officers to begin the first Monday in January following.

W. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE

SOME PLAIN OPINIONS OF THE CONGRESSMAN'S CONDUCT.

He Has Damaged His Case Beyond All Hope of Repair—His Hypercious Fully Revealed.

THE LEADER has purposely refrained from printing the nasty details of the Pollard-Breckinridge case; but it is due to the memory of an honored Kentuckian that his name be rescued from the odium sought to be cast upon it by the Breckinridge side.

Space is given, therefore, to the following matter bearing upon the charge that the late Colonel A. M. Swope was guilty of illicit relations with Miss Pollard.

Elizabeth News—If Congressman Breckinridge succeeds in proving that Madeline Pollard was a very bad and immoral woman, what will the people think of him as introducing such a character to Mrs. Blackburn, one finest ladies of the state, as his affianced wife?

The Stanford Journal, one of the most reputable papers in Kentucky, says:

Colonel Breckinridge may succeed in proving that Madeline Pollard was a very bad woman, but the fact remains that he introduced her to Mrs. Luke Blackburn as his affianced wife and brought her to her home, to which Mrs. B. testified, with much indignation over the turn of events.

She says that on one occasion there were demonstrations in her presence admissible only to engaged lovers. He called her Madeline and she sweetly cooed "Willie" whenever she addressed him.

The defendant must have known what manner of woman he was introducing to Mrs. Blackburn, or if he didn't he might have retained the respect of an injured woman by still saying he believed her the woman he told Mrs. Blackburn she was. It looks very much like Miss Pollard has made out her case against the Dr. Jekyll Mr. Hyde Congressman, and that he ought at least to spare the dead and leave to open the closets in which skeletons are kept, merely to get the amount of damages reduced.

Miss Pollard is doubtless a very designing woman, but she is not half as bad as the Colonel, who wears the livery of a scoundrel, and ministers as a great church man, while inwardly he is shown to be a raving wolf. The defendant's conduct is recorded in a few plain words, but the people hate hypocrisy and despise a man who attempts to sail under false colors.

A special from Danville to The Louisville Times says:

William M. Swope of Lexington was here last night, and in connection with another James H. Swope of this county was giving a thorough investigation of Dr. Lewis's deposition in the Pollard-Breckinridge suit, in which the physician connected the name of their brother, the late Hon. A. M. Swope, with the case in a disgraceful manner. The details of which are familiar to the public.

James Swope said this morning that he had never seen his brother, who would be taken in the matter, but that they were in possession of facts which showed that Colonel Swope was seen in this county in the fall of 1883 and admitted to Dr. Lewis that "the child I had had a good home" as she was lately false. He says that his brother was in Europe and did not return to the United States until the middle of December, that Colonel Swope came to his house in December, but remained only over night, and he is positive he did not during that time see Dr. Lewis at all.

He says further that it is singular that his correspondence should discuss the question of a criminal operation with Dr. Lewis upon a public street in this city.

It is evident that but for Dr. Lewis's age the mothers would call him to perjury. He is the physician. He is consulting lawyers. Dr. Lewis was here yesterday evening advising with his lawyers, informing them that he believed the Swope intended to sue him for law damages.

A telegram from Washington to The Commonwealth Gazette says:

The Pollard-Breckinridge case is attracting a great deal of attention here, and is subject of profound and earnest discussion. The course of the defense in entering the newspapers with their testimony and claim is unfavorably commented upon.

A lawyer of nearly forty years experience discussed in the presence of our correspondents his recent taking and publishing of the deposition of the old Kentucky doctor.

He perhaps, done more to prejudice public sentiment here against the defendant than any one else has.

Said the lawyer:

There is a plain, available abuse of the process of law here. He takes the price and guile of taking testimony to be read on the trial of the case, the defendant is informed that he is being deceived to the level of the scoundrel mongers. This testimony of the old doctor borders closely on the verge of infamy.

By the statistics of every civilized state almost on earth he was protected and disqualified to testify. He was the physician. He refused, or pretended to have received, the confession or an admission of a person employing him in his profession. He was a lawyer. He was the physician. He refused, or pretended to have received, the confession or an admission of a person employing him in his profession. He was a lawyer. He was the physician. He refused, or pretended to have received, the confession or an admission of a person employing him in his profession.

What is it? It does not say that he did. He does not even know that the plaintiff was the person about whom Colonel Swope spoke to him, and what Colonel Swope said, if he said anything, it is powerless as evidence as the power of the dead. Colonel himself to rebuke his traducer.

It is heavy evidence. It is the sworn statement of a dead man, communicated by a living man, and there is not one lawyer living, capable of passing a most rudimentary examination, who does not know that this testimony is absolutely incompetent.

It is neither competent in chief to make out the defense, if he has one, nor is it competent to impeach the credibility or good character of the plaintiff. It is a mere piece of vile scandal—a scandal of the lowest order—and yet counsel for a great Congressman dare to take this testimony and publish it to the world.

It is a plain abuse of the authority of the Court. There ought to be some remedy for conduct like this. Denotations subject to the decision of the Trial Court or Judge ought to be taken in secret, and then suppressed by the order of the Court. Evils conveyed in this way, as in this case, merely scandalous, should be prevented. Why was this step taken by the defense?

The question with which this lawyer ends his statement is on everybody's tongue, and that in this community a severe criticism has grown out of the taking and publishing of this testimony cannot be doubted.

To assure the memory, character and reputation of Colonel A. M. Swope, lying peacefully in his grave, writhed in his bloody dream to take this testimony, is a barbarism almost unparalleled.

COLONEL WILLIAMS

Coming to the Front as a Substantial Candidate.

There's a new man in the field of gubernatorial possibilities on the Republican ticket in Ohio. He is Colonel L. H. Williams of Ripley. A growing boom has been started for him by his friends and the newspapers throughout the state are giving it considerable endorsement.

The Colonel is the present Department Commander of the G. A. R. of Ohio, and two years ago was the Grand Chancellor of the Ohio K. of P.

Few men are better known throughout the state, and that is a popular is testified by the honors that have been conferred upon him.

In politics he has always been a shrewd and earnest worker.

The Colonel lives in a prairie home, and his wife is a lady, while his two daughters, Myrl, are charming society circles. Varrone time ago resided of a West Point Co. at home to assist him in his wife's business.

If the Colonel were to be elected he will make it his other aspirants.

AN INTERNATIONAL IDYLL.

My country's 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing.
Land where the wheat is tied,
Land where industries died,
And to the English side
Thou hast won.

My native country, then,
Land to which paupers flee,
Thy name I love!
I love thy Cleveland hills,
Thy no-trade tariff bills,
Thy Greshams, Smiths and Mills,
Born from above.

Let music swell the breeze!
Democracy to thy knees
And swell the song!
Let those who brought this fate
Their medicine take straight
And three years longer wait
To right the wrong.

Our father, Grover C.
Mogul of misery,
To thee, we sing!
Dear with us if you can;
But, if not, like a man
Say you don't care a dam
For anything.

"A QUICK MATCH," a comedy of apportioned character, but with elements of dramatic nature, will be presented at the Opera-house tonight with the best cast yet seen in this favorite season during its three years reign. Like good wine it improves with age.

A WHEELMAN woman fought desperately and ran the risk of her own life to prevent her husband from committing suicide. If she had been trying to kill herself, wonder if the husband would have attempted to stop her, even without taking any risk.

AMONG the recent decisions of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, and a decision that is important to banks, is that if a bank lends a corporation or any incorporated firm more than its recorded assets, it is empowered to borrow to do so at its own risk, and if the corporation should become insolvent or make an assignment, the bank's claim will only be allowed for the amount the corporation was entitled to borrow by its published articles.

The great revival at Mitchell's Chapel was resumed last night. God's power was made manifest and there were two conversions. The audience was large and attentive. Professor Fogg and Rev. L. Robinson seem much strengthened from their rest and say they have entered for a stage. Rev. N. G. Robinson, formerly of the West Virginia Conference, has been called to assist.

MRS. L. F. WILLIAMS died at her home near Lewisburg Saturday morning at 3 o'clock after severe suffering for months with cancer. She leaves a husband, two daughters and one son to mourn her loss. Funeral services were held at the Lewisburg Baptist Church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, after which she was laid to rest in the Lewisburg Burying-ground.

I. GREENSTEIN on Sunday night about 12 o'clock cried murder! First robust police! etc., until Officer Purcell came to his rescue. A search was made of the building, back yard, and then the roof. Mr. Greenstein was sure he heard a noise that resembled burglars. The bold intruder was captured on the roof hiding behind a chimney. It was not arrested as Mason County Courts have no authority to sentence cases.

T. P. FLORENCE of Cynthiana and Miss Nellie Barlow of Clayville arrived in this city about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, having driven here from Cynthiana. They were directly to the Central Hotel where Officer Purcell was, and when they met him they quickly told him that they had come to this city to be married, and wanted to see the proper party to perform such a ceremony as soon as possible. County Clerk Pearce was sent for, and before daylight the couple were made man and wife. They were both of well known families, and why they should take such steps to marriage is as yet a mystery. The bride had the written consent of her mother.
